Auditorium of 1,500 Seating Capacity Is Promised Town

Management of Hotel Gives Detailed Description of Changes and Remodelling Now Going on There; Auditorium Described.

Extensive improvements to the Hotel Gettysburg, including the probable erection of an annex on the lot in the rear of the property for fifty additional rooms and an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,500 persons, were under way today.

The erection of the annex is contingent upon the passage by council of the ordinance granting the privilege of bridging Race Horse alley, the thoroughfare in the rear of the hotel property, so as to connect the present structure with the proposed annex.

If council passes the ordinance, which will be framed so as to allow any other property owners in town so situated to bridge a similar public thoroughfare, work of erecting the annex is almost certain to start this spring and the auditorium part of the contemplated plan completed before fall, it is stated on excellent autority.

If, however, council refuses to pass the ordinance, sample copies of which were given to the councilmen at the regular monthly meeting of council on Thursday evening, it is also most certain that two additional stories will be added to the present hotel, thereby depriving the town of the benefits of an auditorium. This is the alternative given by one who is in a position to know.

The proposed annex to the hotel will cover the entire lot in the rear of the hotel, the boundaries of which are the property of the Western Maryland railroad on the north and the property of the John C. Lower company on the east.

Under present drawings, a copy of which was submitted to council, the front of the auditorium will be on Carlisle street, probably a store room on both sides of the entrance, the auditorium itself spreading out behind the two shops. With the exception of the two storerooms, the auditorium will occupy the entire first floor of the proposed building.

At one end of the auditorium will be a stage for the accommodation of presiding officers or for theatrical performances. The auditorium may also be used as a ballroom or for the accommodation of banquets and large dinner parties.

On the second and third floors of the proposed annex will be fifty additional sleeping rooms for the use of the hotel guests. It is planned to have every room with bath and each an outside sleeping chamber.

W. H. Lee, of Philadelphia, who is the architect for the improvements now being made to the front of the hotel, has drawn preliminary sketches of the proposed annex, and the bridge necessary to link the present building with the proposed annex.

According to specifications, this connecting link will be a continuation of the corridor on the Carlisle street side of the hotel opening into a similar corridor in the proposed auxiliary building. The link over Race Horse alley will be enclosed on all sides, although window space has been allowed for. It will be at least sixteen feet above the right of way, thereby affording clearance to the highest loads which pass underneath, it is pointed out. The bridge will be only as wide as the corridor itself, and will be back from Carlisle street for a distance of approximately fifteen feet.

Improvements now being made to the front of the Hotel Gettysburg are extensive. Workmen, under the direction of James Weikert, contractor, are removing all vestiges of what was formerly the barroom, which since July 1, 1919, has been unusued and allowed to stand idle.

The space devoted to the barroo a and that of the present writing and ladies' rooms on the Carlisle street side of the hotel will be thrown together to form a new and spacious lobby. The ladies' room, when work is completed, will occupy a room at the northeast corner of the lobby, now part of the barroom. The bil-

COST $35,000 TO RUN THE BOROUGH DURING YEAR 1923

Rebuilding And Improvements of Streets Took Biggest Slice, Annual Audit Of Treasurer's Accounts Shows.

It cost $34,903.75 to run the borough of Gettysburg in 1923. This was revealed in the annual audit of the borough treasurer's accounts presented to town council at its meeting on Thursday evening.

The largest single item of expense was that incurred in the rebuilding and improving of streets within the borough, although a large sum was paid out to redeem notes held by the First National Bank. Under the item of street expense, the audit shows that $4,720.01 was spent, of which the M. and T. E. Farrel Company received $3,905.31.

The sum of $7,950 was paid out by former borough treasurer Philip R. Bikle to redeem notes of the borough held by the First National Bank, according to the audit of the general fund account.

Other disbursements appearing on the auditors' report are as follows:

Board of health appropriation, $600; light, $3,991.09; fire company expense, $2,204.09; printing and advertising, $120.55; miscellaneous, $898.15; insurance, $156.37; rentals, $57.20; work and material, $1,082.74; curbing, $869.11; discounts and stamps, $2,294.19; pay roll, $3,810; officers' salaries $1,362.37; borough auditors, $53; coal, lime, wood, lumber, sand, cement, brick and stone, $1,557.19; freight and transportation, $561.02; horse expense, $285; water rent, $1,358; police, $1,495.23; sewer expense, $183.44.

According to the report of the auditors, the sum of $655.56 was the balance in the treasury at the beginning of 1924, as compared with $70.65 on hand on January 1, 1923.

The town's chief source of revenue in 1923 as in all other previous years was from the tax duplicates of the borough collector. A total of $19,381.80 was turned in by Tax Collector William Ogden from his 1923 duplicate, according to the audit. An additional $2,108.13 was received from Harry E. Bumbaugh, former tax collector, from his 1920 and 1921 duplicates.

Other items of income are listed in the audit as follows:

Notes discounted at First National Bank, $9,500; William E. Olinger, burgess, $985.65; C. A. Moose, marketmaster, $297.86; American LaFrance Fire Engine Company, refund, $6; H. E. Riddlemoser, fire engine company's services, $100; Edward Newman, sale of iron, $0.40;

Hotel Gettysburg Plans Two-Story Addition on Carlisle Street, Providing Facilities of Public Hall; Council Gives Its Approval.

Consideration of the request of the Hotel Gettysburg Company for permission to bridge Race Horse alley at the rear of its property in order to connect the present hotel structure with an addition to be erected on the lot north of the alley, was the most important item of business to come before the borough council at its regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening.

After the plan of the hotel company had been presented to the councilmen by Charles Butt, Esq., of Gettysburg, and W. H. Lee, architect, of Philadelphia, and a sketch of the proposed improvements shown, Attorney Butt read copies of a sample ordinance, under which not only the hotel company, but any other company so situated in Gettysburg, would have the privilege of bridging a public alley, to all of the councilmen.

After Attorney Butt and Mr. Lee and Henry M. Scharf, manager of the Hotel Gettysburg, who accompanied the other two to the council chamber, had withdrawn, the councilmen discussed the request of the hotel company from many different angles, most of which had to deal with technicalities in the way of the council in granting the privilege asked for.

Following the discussion, in which it was evident that a majority of the councilmen was favorable to the granting of the privilege, members of the ordinance committee took copies of the sample ordinance prepared by Attorney Butt, from which, it was decided, an ordinance should be drafted granting the request asked for. Councilman W. I. Oyler made the motion instructing the drafting of the ordinance covering the privilege requested.

In presenting his plan to council, Mr. Lee said the hotel company faced one of two alternatives—either the addition of two additional stories to the present structure on Center Square, or the addition of a separate building on the lot in the rear of the present hotel, to be connected by the passageway. He declared that if council would grant the request it would mean the erection of a building to be used both for hotel purposes and as an auditorium.

Under the present plan, the auditorium, which would have a seating capacity of 1,500 persons, would occupy most of the ground floor of the proposed addition, he said. On the second and third floors of the annex would be fifty additional sleeping rooms, according to Mr. Lee.

He declared that if council would withhold the privilege, the hotel company would go ahead with its improvements to the present structure, adding two stories, but that the town would suffer through loss of the auditorium which would otherwise be provided.

In a discussion of the technicalities involved in allowing a private company to bridge a public alley, Solicitor J. Donald Swope declared that the borough could not grant the sole privilege to the Hotel Gettysburg Company to cross an alley, but that a blanket ordinance could be passed under which not only the hotel, but any other company or private individual similarly situated, might enjoy the same privilege.

It was pointed out that the con-

'OFFICER 666' SCORES BIG HIT

American Legion's Show is Humorous and Gripping by Turns.

DELIGHTS ITS AUDIENCE

Under Direction of Harold Mumper Plot Unfolds Smoothly and Without Apparent Effort on Part of Players.

Captivating a large audience from the start, "Officer 666," produced for the benefit of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion, made a tremenduous hit at the Lincoln Way Theater Thursday evening.

Full of humor which lay just below the surface of the lines, and sufficiently thrilling to grip and hold the attention of the audience while the plot was skillfully unfolded, "Officer 666" easily found its way into the heart of every spectator.

From start to finish, the actors, most of them members of the Legion, and the actresses, one of them a member of the Legion's Auxiliary, went through their lines without apparent hesitation. Each seemed to live the part he or she played and the interpretation of these parts put the production above the strictly amateur class.

To Harold Mumper, who, in addition to taking one of the leading male roles in the piece, directed the production through its weeks of preparation, goes most of the credit for the success of the show.

Frank Stokes, caretaker at the American Legion home, won laurels for himself in the manner in which he interpreted the character of Michael Phelan, "Officer 666." With an Irish brogue which came natural to Mr. Stokes, he seemed admirably suited to play the part, once made famous by Douglas Fairbanks, screen star.

While Mr. Stokes was the leading male figure in the production, and starred in the role, the acting of all of the other members of the cast was without blemish and each interpreted his or her part in a way which left no doubt as to ability.

The show was produced in three acts, the setting of each being the drawing rooms of Travers Gladwin's home. In brief, the story is as follows:

Travers Gladwin, millionaire art

COUNTY NATIVE DIES IN HANOVER

Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Slagle Passes Away At The Age of 94.

Mrs. Elizabeth Slagle, a native of Adams county, and widow of Edgar Slagle, died at her late home in Hanover Wednesday evening, aged 94 years.

Death was due to infirmities which developed following a fall eight weeks ago. Up until that time Mrs. Slagle had been able to be about the house and was in remarkably good health considering her age. She sustained only bruises in the fall which occurred in her bedroom, from which she recovered in due time. The shock, however, brought on infirmities which confined her to bed since that time.

Before marriage Mrs. Slagle was Miss Ann Elizabeth Shriver. She was the daughter of the late Henry and Elizabeth (Swope) Shriver, who resided in Littlestown, where Mrs. Slagle was born. Practically her entire life was spent in Hanover as she went there to live with her grandparents when quite young.

Surviving are one daughter, Miss Mary L. Slagle, at home; one son, the Rev. Dr. Calvin S. Slagle, a Reformed church minister of Baltimore, and one sister, Mrs. Emma J. Guyer, 201½ East Walnut street, Hanover. Funeral services Saturday morning at 11 o'clock with services at the house. Burial will take place in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. S. DeChant, pastor of Emmanuel Reformed church, and the Rev. Dr. Henry H. Apple, president of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster.

Ralph Weaver

Ralph Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Weaver, McSherrystown, who died at 12 o'clock Wednesday night at the Annie M. Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, will be buried on Saturday. He was 14 years old, having attained that age last Sunday.

MRS. MARY E. HARDY DIED ON THURSDAY

Came to Gettysburg When Only 6 Years of Age; Died at 89 Years.

Mrs. Mary E. Hardy, widow of Casper Hardy, died Thursday evening at her home on South Washington street, after a lingering illness caused by chronic carditis. She was aged 89 years, 3 months and 11 days.

Born in Oberladen, Germany, she came to this country in 1840 when 6 years old, coming across with her parents. They settled in Gettysburg shortly after landing in the United States.

After her marriage, Mrs. Hardy lived for a number of years in Baltimore and Annapolis, but for some time past had made her home in this place.

Surviving is one son, Thomas J. Hardy, at home; also three granddaughters, one grandson, seven great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Funeral services Monday morning from the late residence at 9:30 o'clock, with requiem high mass at St. Francis Xavier church at 10 o'clock the Rev. Mark E. Stock officiating. Interment in St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

DIRECTORS END ANNUAL MEETING

Urge Equalization of Property Assessment For Schools in Sessions.

The twenty-ninth annual convention of the Pennsylvania State School Directors' Association, held Wednesday and Thursday in the auditorium of the Technical High School in Harrisburg, came to a close at the Thursday afternoon session, and the thousand or more directors, secretaries of boards and county superintendents began trips to their homes in all parts of the State.

Among those who attended from Adams county were Professors Raymond Shank and Lloyd Keefauver, representing Adams county schools; D. D. Shriver and Luther Cashman, representing the Straban township school board; Roy Raffensperger, of Butler township, also a county delegate, and at least a score of others.

Two addresses were included in the last day's sessions in addition to the transaction of much business in the passage of a number of resolutions and the election of the officers for the coming year.

Dr. James M. Glass, director of junior high schools, of the Department of Public Instruction, speaking yesterday afternoon on "Why the Junior High School?" declared that, while the junior high school is still in the experimental stage, it has, nevertheless, come to stay.

"The junior high school is no longer a theory; it has become an established fact," Glass told the directors. "It will require another generation, probably, before it has passed out of the experimental stage, but it is here to stay. Already, it has relieved school congestion and

10 M'SHERRYSTOWN MEN HELD IN BAIL

Defendants, Arrested in Gambling Raid, Post $300 Each For Court.

The ten defendants, arrested in McSherrystown, Brushtown and New Oxford on Monday, charged with operating gambling devices, were held in $300 bail each to appear at the April term of court, if needed, at a preliminary hearing before Justice of Peace J. L. Hill this afternoon.

In the meantime, their attorney, J. Donald Swope, Esq., of Gettysburg, informed them that efforts would be made to have the cases settled before Justice Hill, if Judge D. P. McPherson was willing. Attorney Swope was anxious to have the cases settled at once by Justice Hill, but the latter thought it best to hold the men for court pending a settlement before the April term. Meantime, Justice Hill said no returns of the cases would be made to the clerk of the courts.

The ten defendants were present at the hearing which required less than five minutes when a method of procedure was adopted.

Those arrested were Frank Burkee, Charles G. Smith, James Conrad, Paul Eline, F. V. Topper, F. K. Pfaltzgraff, and J. H. Leonard, of McSherrystown; Charles Myers and Earl J. Haverstock, of Brushtown, and Gilbert Houck, of New Oxford.

TELLS OF WAYS TO STOP WARS

Kirby Page Lectures at Brua Chapel, Urging International Court.

PUBLIC AVERSION AIDS

Sentiment Against Bloodshed May Be Fostered; Failure to Obtain Results by Warfare is Cited.

How can further wars be prevented?

This was the topic presented by Kirby Page, lecturer, who addressed an audience at Brua Chapel on Thursday evening. Following the talk, the meeting was thrown open for questions and discussions by the public.

During the course of his lecture, Mr. Page said that "all of us are familiar with the indescribable horrors of war; we have an innate tendency to hate war; and we recognize the fact that any future wars will be far more disastrous to humanity and civilization than any preceding one."

Mr. Page then set forth methods by which, in his opinion, wars can be eliminated. First, by understanding the causes of wars,—by realizing that wars are not accidents; second, by creating and strengthening an International Court of Justice, where settlements will be made through reason and not through spilling of blood.

"The anarchy prevalent here before the Thirteen Colonies gave up their original and individual sovereignties collapsed when the Federal government was created, which had its power vested in three departments—namely, legislative, executive and judicial.

In like manner, we ought to form an International government with power such as the three divisions mentioned would give it. We must then add impetus to public sentiment which will lead to declaring the outlawry of war.

"It is necessary that war be made illegal. Dueling was at one time a legal way of settling disputes,—today it is illegal and outlawed. Even piracy was once legal."

Through calling an International court of justice and having inserted in International law an article making war illegal; by renouncing war as a sin and refusing ever again to sanction or engage in it on the grounds that "it doesn't work," that it is poor tactics, and that it "is not the way of Jesus Christ in doing things,"—in this manner may we abolish war and its attendant evils, said the speaker.

"Men of authority refuse to reckon with the results which follow to their respective countries, such as secret diplomacy, selfish materialism, armaments, fear, suspicion, bitterness and violence.

"Churches may be one instrumentality through which we can hope to forever exterminate wars, the breeders of trouble and more wars.

"Wars only temporarily settle matters at the most, and the expense is so enormous that we ought to be willing to try a method which will not cost so much. The methods of Jesus and the methods of war are in direct antithesis. Christ, as He went to the cross, was not certain what His death would accomplish. He was only hopeful.

"True principles are realities, and, if we grant the theory of International peace and the cessation of wars as possible, we are forced to accept the theory as practicable."

A number of interesting comments on the lecture were then brought forth when the meeting was given over to the audience.

MRS. WILSON BAIR

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Cora M. Bair, wife of Wilson Bair, Mt. Joy township, near Littlestown, who died Wednesday afternoon at the West Side Sanitarium, York. Death was the result of a poisoned condition of the blood. She was aged 49 years, 10 months, 5 days.

Her parents were the late Emanuel and Elizabeth Baker, who resided in Maryland, where Mrs. Bair was born. She was a member of Christ Reformed church, near Littlestown. Thirty years ago she was married to Wilson Bair, who survives; also one son, Nevin Bair, Hanover; two sisters, Miss Flora Baker, York, and Mrs. Charles Lowe, Westminster.

The body was taken to the home of her son in Hanover, from which place funeral services were conducted at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Interment was made in Mt. Carmel cemetery, Littlestown.

Harrisburg, Feb. 8.—The advisory committee appointed by Dr. J. George Becht, superintendent of public instruction to cooperate with the department of public instruction in the investigation of American histories in Pennsylvania schools, at a meeting here today planned to have each member read the text books and then conduct a hearing at which both the protestants to certain subject matter and the publishers will be heard.

The committee was appointed under a joint resolution passed by the 1923 legislature which instructed the department to make an investigation of the histories to determine whether they contained objectionable matter relating to certain leading events in American history.

Protests against certain parts of the histories have been made by patriotic orders.

Dr. Becht said today there were 25 different histories used in Pennsylvania schools and it was the plan of the committee to read them all before they hold a hearing.

BUTLER TO DROP "CIRCUS METHODS"

48-Hour Drives In Philadelphia End This Week, Says Director.

Philadelphia, Feb. 8—When General Butler faced his lieutenants at the weekly conference Thursday afternoon, all the usual verbal fireworks were missing, and during the course of his remarks the director indicated a complete reversal of police tactics in cleaning up the city.

While impressing upon them that the drive against vice and crime would continue, he declared that the "hippodrome stuff and crazy madhouse tactics" must cease. He also indicated that this week-end would see the last of the now famous forty-eight-hour drives.

"Guard against doing anything that will embarrass Mr. Kendrick's administration," he said. "Keep away from the hippodrome stuff. I must admit that I have sinned in this latter respect more than any of you, and the only excuse I have to offer is that I wus unduly excited and over-enthusiastic. However, I hope to be forgiven."

Throughout the whole conference he spoke gently and quietly, asking for better understanding and more harmony in "putting over this clean-up."

"Don't be afraid to smash all law-breaking combines," he said, "because you will be backed to the limit. If I think you are in danger of reprisals I will not leave you at the end of the year, but will continue here even if I have to work for nothing. If my leave from the marine corps is not extended I will quit."

DIAMOND MURDER TRIAL IS OPENED

Three Others Face Brooklyn Court For Slaying of Bank Messengers.

New York, Feb. 8.—Morris Diamond, charged with the murder of two West End Bank messengers, who were shot down and robbed of $43,000 in Brooklyn, November 15, was brought before Justice Cropsey in the supreme court Thursday, to stand trial for first-degree murder.

Indicted with Diamond are his brother Joseph, Anthony Pantano and John Farina. Their attorneys have contended for separate trials. One talesman was accepted tentatively and examination of the others proceeded.

The murder of the bank messengers was carefully planned; a cold-blooded crime seldom surpassed in the annals of New York banditry. The court room, in consequence, was heavily guarded, ten policemen being on duty.

The messengers, William S. Barlow, former police sergeant, and William H. McLaughlin, war veteran and assistant paying teller of the West End Bank, had just stepped from an elevated train to the platform of the New Utrecht Avenue Station, carrying between them a satchel containing $43,000, when they were confronted by two men.

Not a word was spoken. The gunmen, apparently drug-crazed, opened fire, nor ceased to shoot until both messengers lay motionless.

The Diamond brothers went to Philadelphia, where they boasted to chorus girl acquaintances of their suddenly acquired wealth. They were captured eleven days after the crime.

PINCHOT GOING SOUTH

(By Associated Press.)

Harrisburg, Feb. 8.—Governor Pinchot, accompanied by Mrs. Pinchot, planned to leave today for a stay of a week or so at Southern Pines, N. C. The Governor was at the capitol for a few hours this morning after being confined to the executive mansion for the past week with an affection of the ear and a slight attack of grippe. He said he was feeling fine.

VOLSTEAD ACT REPEAL IS SURE

Representative Hill Tells Senate Committee Congress Will Eventually Act.

WILSON VETOED MEASURE

Said it Contained a Legislative Lie in Defining "Intoxicating" Alcoholic Content, is Reported.

Annapolis, Feb. 8—"Congress is going to repeal the Volstead act. It may not occur at this session, but it is bound to come soon. Until such time as Congress does give to the States the right to enforce their own police powers, Maryland must not pass a similar act."

Representative John Philip Hill made this declaration Thursday at a hearing before the Senate Temperance Committee on the enforcement bill now pending in that body.

"In the Volstead act, Congress has usurped those powers of the State, and when they are returned it will be time for Maryland to consider an enforcement act of her own," Mr. Hill continued.

Several Hundred At Hearing

Mr. Hill was the principal speaker at the hearing, at which various organizations opposed to the measure were represented. John G. Callan, president of the Liberty Defense League of Maryland, was chairman of the delegation, which included several hundred members of the organizations.

In Favor Of Temperance

"I am in favor of temperance," Mr. Hill insisted. "My great-great-grandfather was president of the first temperance society in Annapolis, and I am proud of the fact. But I also believe in temperance in legislation. Woodrow Wilson vetoed the Volstead act because he said it contained a 'legislative lie.' The fact that Maryland has not yet passed an enforcement act proves that its citizens know more about the Constitution than does Congress.

"Nothing in the Eighteenth Amendment requires the respective States to pass enforcement acts. It is neither the legal nor the moral duty of Maryland to do so. The amendment simply gives the States concurrent powers in enforcement by appropriate legislation. Neither the present bill nor the Volstead act is appropriate because both declare that beverages containing one-half of one per cent. of alcohol are intoxicating, which is clearly a legislative lie."

Mr. Hill also referred to letters from Wayne B. Wheeler and others prominent in the Anti-Saloon League to prove that even they are uncertain as to the content necessary to produce intoxication.

Mr. Machen characterized the Volstead act as a law which "none but a scroundrel will enforce, and none but a coward obey."

"When the Volstead act is repealed," he said, "Maryland will pass an enforcement act of her own, but it will be a decent and honest one."

Carter Denounces Regulatory Laws

Shirley Carter, former president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, denounced the tendency on the part of the Government to regulate the habits of individuals by legislation.

"Personal rights of individuals were established before there was any law and they will exist in spite of attempts to legislate them away," he declared.

Mrs. Mortimer W. West, president of the Federation of Democratic Women, declared that "the Volstead act has made criminals of good men and has made bootlegging a respectable profession."

CROWDS STORM TOMB

Throngs File Past Wilson's Resting Place; Soldier Guard Remains.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Feb. 8.—The crowds which have been passing through Bethlehem chapel at the Cathedral where Woodrow Wilson was entombed yesterday today gave no indication of diminishing. Despite the cold weather, they began gathering early today and by 9 o'clock had overflowed the street and tied up traffic.

The war department has given orders that the soldier guard shall remain for an indefinite period.

CHINAMAN EXECUTED BY LETHAL GAS IN NEVADA

(By Associated Press.)

Carson City, Nev., Feb. 8.—Gee John was pronounced dead at 9:37 a. m., and persons witnessing the execution said death occurred 37 seconds after the gas was turned into the death chamber. The condemned prisoner walked 40 yards into the prison yard and eight minutes after he left his cell he apparently was dead.

Paroled Convict Violates Conditions; Resumes 99-Year Term.

(By Associated Press.)

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 8.—John Benenedeto, who served the last 15 years of his 70 years in Marquette penitentiary and who was paroled last June, is going back to Michigan to resume serving his sentence of 99 years. He was paroled on condition that he return to Italy. Instead he went to Boston.

FOUR GODDESSES GUARD KING TUT

No Place For God Of Death In Beautiful Tomb Now Revealed.

Luxor, Egypt, Feb. 8—After the series of dazzling golden shrines inclosing it, richly inscribed with large figures of the king and goddesses and innumerable bands of hieroglyphics, Tut-Ankh-Amen's great sandstone coffin, which the correspondent inspected at a special visit Thursday morning, is a remarkably plain and dignified affair.

Its slightly rough surface of a peculiar reddish hue produces at first glimpse the impression of terra cotta. It is safe to say it is quite unlike any sarcophagus previously discovered, in that it bears no figures save those of the four protective goddesses. It is particularly noticeable that the customary representations of Anubis, the jackal-headed god of death, and the four "children of the hours," guarding the symbolic canopic jars, are absent.

One would hesitate to pronounce it more beautiful than the famous sarcophagus of Seti I, now in London, as the material is coarser, while the sculpture of the guardian goddesses shows details that detract from the austere dignity of the whole.

There appears to be traces of cement filling in the joints between the inner edge of the cornice and the lid of the coffin. At a rough computation the sarcophagus is about ten feet long by five feet nine inches high to the top of the cornice and four feet nine inches broad.

Resting on the ground before the south face of the coffin is a wooden representation of the "sign of stability," the so-called backbone of Osiris and one of the best-known amulets of the ancient Egyptians. It stands about eighteen inches high and is painted in alternate bands of yellow, green and purple.

The absence from the sarcophagus of the grim animal-headed god of death accords with what seems to be the intention of the builders of this amazing sepulchre to banish from it everything that was not entirely beautiful and artistic.

DENIES SECRET WILSON TREATY

Agreement Made With Perfect Loyalty, Lloyd George Declares.

SPENCER BACKS OUTLINE

Controversy Arises in England Over Matter of Interview; Seek End to "Raking Up Hot Embers."

London, Feb. 8.—David Lloyd George, in a statement appearing in today's Chronicle, says:

"To describe this agreement as 'a secret compact' between Mr. Wilson and M. Clemenceau is ridiculous. Mr. Wilson, I need hardly say, acted with perfect loyalty, and it cannot be imputed as a blame either to the late president or to M. Clemenceau that I was called to England at the time these grave matters were under discussion."

The published allegations of a secret pact between the late Woodrow Wilson and former Premier Clemenceau dealing with allied occupation of the Rhineland call for a great display in the morning newspapers all of which treat the matter as a first-class sensation, using their biggest headlines and printing the articles in spaced type. Harold Spencer's version of his interview with Mr. Lloyd George, the British and French official statements and Andre Tardieu's denial are all presented.

Statements given to the Daily Sketch by both Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Spencer, whose version of his talk with the former prime minister was published in America Wednesday, make it questionable whether Lloyd George said anything more emphatic to the British journalist than in his interview with the Associated Press on Sunday.

The Sketch asked an explanation of Mr. Lloyd George, who replied through his secretary: "The facts as recorded in Mr. Spencer's statement are substantially correct, but I did not grant the interview."

When this was shown to Mr. Spencer, he corroborated Mr. Lloyd George's assertion, "If there was any carelessness in the matter it was entirely mine," he said. "I did not ask his permission to use anything he said.

"I was asked to write a description of Mr. Lloyd George's life at Churt and I put in a few observations here and there. Mr. Lloyd George talked off and on for twenty-four hours on every subject during the week-end, I spent with him and I reproduced one or two observations."

This utterance of Spencer was then submitted to the former premier through his secretary, but the reply was a refusal "to make any comment until he has gone fully into the matter."

The Daily News asks: "what have we today to do with these squalid intrigues?" Contending that the French policy toward Germany, however sanctioned, has failed, the newspaper calls for a new policy in no wise resembling "the anarchy of the past few years," it remarks that the new labor government is pledged to find such a policy, and adds: "the first definite step toward this is to call a peremptory truce to this raking over of the still hot embers of old controversies."

GOODNOUGH TO RUN AGAIN

Announces For Reelection As Representative and Speaker in 1925 Session.

(By Associated Press.)

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—Announcement was made today by C. J. Goodnough, speaker of the House in the 1923 legislature and a supporter of Governor Pinchot, that he will be a candidate for reelection as representative and speaker in the 1925 session.

Mr. Goodnough made known his double candidacy in a letter to W. Harry Baker, chairman of the Republican State Committee.

The announcement came as a surprise, as three weeks ago Mr. Goodnough, in Harrisburg, announced he did not intend to go back to the legislature.

W. M. PREP TO MEET BIGLERVILLE TEAM

Owing to a sudden switch in arrangements, Biglerville High School will meet Western Maryland Prep of Westminster on the Auditorium floor this evening. Little is known of Western Maryland aside from the fact that they have been traveling fast in northern Maryland scholastic circles. Waynesboro had been originally scheduled but at the last minute, sent word asking that the Biglerville management substitute Western Maryland. The game will be called at eight o'clock.

BIGLER FIREMEN NAME OFFICERS

Nominations Are Made For Election For Officers At Next Meeting.

The annual smoker of the Biglerville Hose and Truck Company attracted fifty members of the organization to the hall on East York street, Biglerville, on Thursday evening. Nomination of officers for the current year was made. Other matters of routine nature were passed upon.

A delegation of Gettysburg firemen, headed by Chief J. B. Aumen, was present and were the guests at a luncheon served. Those present, besides Chief Aumen, were Mervin Crouse, Allen Brown, Edward Swope, George McClellan and Donald Stallsmith.

At the business session the following officers were nominated: president, E. D. Heiges, C. E. Miller; vice-president, H. C. Bucher, H. S. Spangler; secretary, John W. Deardorff, R. H. Linninger; assistant secretary, L. B. Slaybaugh, Paul Diehl; treasurer, E. W. Heiges, C. E. Rouzer; captain, Dallas Foreman, Claude Miller; lieutenant, J. W. Funt, Paul Osborne, William Deatrick; trustees, G. W. Koser, U. S. Klinefelter, Charles Glunt, D. L. Jacobs, C. J. Fohl, William Gulden; superintendent, G. H. Knouse, Orie Nary; auditors, Clyde Walter, Earl Fohl, Mahlon Shue, W. E. Roth, H. U. Walter; hose guard, John Reed, Guy Deatrich, Raymond Trimmer, Earl Carey; chief pipeman, Lawrence Lupp, Emory Funt, Albert Fidler; police, B. G. Walter, Charles Glunt, A. W. Fidler, C. J. Fohl; investigating committee, D. A. Washinger, N. C. Thomas, P. H. Raensiperger, H. C. Bucher and William Gulden. These nominees will be voted upon at the March meeting. Those elected will then meet and choose the fire chief and the drivers.

Announcement was made of the death benefit of $25 which will be paid the families of deceased members. It was also decided that an official delegation will represent the Biglerville company at the firemen's fair which will be held at Two Taverns on next Saturday evening.

The question of establishing a general alarm system in the town was thoroughly discussed. D. A. Washinger, who had been appointed to investigate the feasibility of establishing such a system, reported. No action was taken concerning the matter however.

Smokes were on hand and luncheon served to more than fifty members and guests. E. D. Heiges, president, presided at the meeting.

HOME TALENT PLAY PLEASES BIGLER FOLK

Under the auspices of the Biglerville Auditorium Association, a home talent production was presented on Wednesday evening as part of the lyceum course which is now being run in the upper-end borough. A fair sized audience was well pleased with the offerings of the evening.

The entertainment was divided into three parts. Two playlets were given and in the intermission living statuary was shown.

"His Model Wife," a playlet telling of the troubles of an artist who has misled a wealthy aunt into the belief that he is married, presented many humorous situations for the players to score hits. Earl Fohl, impersonating the artist, did well in the leading masculine part, while Miss Marjorie Walter, playing opposite, made a splendid characterization of his "wife." Friends of the artist were taken by John Fidler and by Miss Edrie Fidler. Miss Esta Bream took the part of the wealthy aunt in fine fashion and Mrs. B. G. Walter acted the part of the society lady. Miss Edith Fohl as "Patsy," the laundry woman's daughter, and Miss Maybelle Lady, as a maid, did well. As a congressman from the west, C. C. Muehe portrayed the part, while the daughter was taken by Miss Esta Bream.

In an "Economical Boomerang," Mr. and Mrs. Philmer Bream scored a big hit by the splendid way in which they portrayed the characters of an economical husband and his obedient wife. Miss Pauline Oyler and Clifford Bucher, as a newly married couple, caused the trouble by sending the doctor, Mr. W. K. Enck, to attend the economical husband for insanity. Miss Thelma Slaybaugh took the part of the maid. Both playlets were capably managed and coached by Miss Alice Longsdorf, who also directed the display of living statues.

The boy was rushed to the hospital on Monday night in serious condition, suffering from appendicitis. He underwent an operation there Wednesday morning. Surviving are the parents, Henry F. and Sophie S. Weaver, two sisters, Misses Estella and Anna, and one brother, Wilson, at home. The body was removed by J. T. Kernan, McSherrystown undertaker, to Mr. Kernan's funeral home where it was prepared for burial. Services in St. Mary's Catholic church, McSherrystown, on Saturday at 9 a. m., the Rev. Dr. L. A. Reudter, pastor, officiating. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

William N. Jacoby

Wm. N. Jacoby, Abbottstown, son of the late Henry and Martha Sponseller Jacoby, died at 9 a. m. Wednesday at the home of his son, John Jacoby. Death was due to a stroke of paralysis. He was aged 66 years, 8 months and 12 days. He leaves one son, John Jacoby, and one sister, Julia Jacoby, Abbottstown. Funeral on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the house, with further services at the Reformed church, Abbottstown, the Rev. A. P. Frantz officiating. Burial in Mt. Olivet cemetery, Abbottstown.

Only Bond No. 2 of the street improvement issue and Bond No. 2 of the street paving issue, each for $500, were redeemed within the last twelve months. Other bonds redeemd during the year amounted to $2,600.

D. C. Stallsmith, John W. Hewitt and Carl S. Menchey, the borough auditors, finished their work in connection with the annual audit of the treasurer's accounts on Wednesday. They had been engaged in the task since early in January.

Copies of the auditors' report are posted at each of the three polling places in Gettysburg—the fire engine house, the court house and Epley's Garage—and at the barber shops of H. B. and B. M. Sefton. A copy of the audit was presented to each member of the finance committee of council at the meeting Thursday evening and another copy filed with the clerk of the courts.

ON THE JOB AT LAST

The BRANDING IRON

by Katharine Newlin Burt

COPYRIGHT BY KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT.

"Now," she said, "you are angry with me. You always are when you talk that queer way. Won't you please explain it to me, Mr. Gael?"

"No!" said he sharply. "I won't." And he added after a moment, "You'd better go to bed. You're sleepy and as stupid as an owl."

"Oh!"

"Yes. And you've destroyed what little superstitious belief I had left concerning something they tell little ignorant boys about a woman's intuition. You haven't got a bit. You're stupid and I'm tired of you— No, Joan, I'm not. Don't mind me. I'm only in fun. Please! D—n! I've hurt your feelings."

Her lips were quivering, her eyes full. "I try so awful hard," she said. It was a lovely, broken trail of music.

"Dear child! Joan, don't you ever think of me?"

"Yes, yes; all the while I'm thinking of you. I wisht I could do more for you. Why do I make you so angry? I know I'm awful—awfully stupid and ignorant. I—I must drive you most crazy, but truly"—here she turned quickly in his arm and put her hands about his neck and laid her cheek against his shoulder—"truly, Mr. Gael, I'm awful fond of you." Then she drew quickly away, quivered back into the other corner of her great chair, put her face to her hands. "Only—I can't help seein'—Pierre."

Just her tone showed him that still and ghastly youth, and again he saw the brown hand that moved. He had stood between her and that sight. The man ought to have died. He did not deserve his life nor this love of hers. Even though he had failed to kill the man, he would not fail to kill her love for him, sooner or later, thought Prosper. If only the hateful spring would give him time. He must move her from her memory. She had put her hands about his neck, she had laid her head against his shoulder, and, if it had been the action of a child, then she would not have started from him with that sharp memory of Pierre.

Joan had made her plans. She would wait till spring, partly to get back her full strength, partly to make further progress in her studies, but mostly in order not to hurt this hospitable Prosper Gael. The naivete of her gratitude, of her delicate consideration for his feelings, which continually triumphed over an instinctive fear, would have filled him with amusement, perhaps with compunction, had he been capable of understanding them. She was truly sorry that she had hurt him by running away. She told herself she would not do that again. In the spring she would make him a speech of thankfulness and of farewell, and then she would tramp back to Pierre's homestead and win and hold Pierre's land. As yet, you see, Prosper entered very little into her conscious life. Somewhere, far down in her, there was a disturbance, a growing doubt, a something vague and troubling. . . . Joan had not learnt to probe her own heart. A sensation was not, or it was. She was puzzled by the feeling Prosper was beginning to cause her, a feeling of miserable complexity: but she was not yet mentally equipped for the confronting of complexity. It was necessary for an emotion to rush at Joan and throw down, as it were, her heart before she recognized it; even then she might not give it a name. She would act, however, and with violence.

There Were Blistered Spots About the Pathetic, Mistaken Signature.

So now she planned and worked and grew beautiful with work and planning, while Prosper worked, too, and his instruments were delicate and deadly and his plans made no account of hers. He worked on her subconsciousness, undermining her path, and at nights and in her sleep she grew aware of him.

But even now, in his cool and passionate heart there were moments of reaction, one at last that came near to wrecking his purpose.

"Your clothes are about done for, Joan," Prosper laughed one morning, watching her belt in her tattered shirt; you'll soon look like Cophetua's beggar maid."

"I'm not quite barefoot yet." She held up a cracked boot.

"I was going to tell you that there are a skirt and a sort of coat in—in a closet in the hall. Do you want to use them?"

She went out to look. In five minutes he heard her laugh, and, still laughing, she opened the door again.

"Oh, Mr. Gael, were you really thinking that I could wear these? Look."

He turned and looked at her. She had crowded her strong, lithe frame into a brown tweed suit, a world too narrow for her, and she was laughing to show him the misfit.

"These things, Mr. Gael," she said—"they must have been made for a tall child."

Prosper had too far tempted his pain, and in her vivid phrase it came to life before him. She had painted a startling picture and he had seen that suit, so small and trim, before.

Joan saw his face grow white, his eyes stared through her. He drew a quick breath and winced away from her, hiding his face in his hands. A moment later he was weeping convulsively, with violence, his head down between his hands. Joan started toward him, but he made a wicked and repellent gesture. She fled into her room and sat, bewildered, on her bed.

All at once the question came to her: for whom had the delicate fabrics been bought, for whom had this suit been made? "It was his wife and she is dead," thought Joan, and very pitifully she took off the suit, laid it and the other things away, and sitting by her window rested her chin in her hands and stared out through the blue pines. Tears ran down her face because she was so sorry for Prosper's pain. And again, thought Joan, she had caused it, she who owed him everything. Yes, she was deeply sorry for Prosper, deeply; her whole heart was stirred. For the first time she had a longing to comfort him with her hands.

* * * * * * * *

For all that day Prosper fled the house and went across the country, now fording a flood of melted snow, now floundering through a drift, now walking on springy sod, unaware of the soft spring, conscious only of a sort of fire in his breast. He suffered and he resented his suffering, and he would have killed his heart if, by so doing, he could have given it peace. And all day he did not once think of Joan, but only of the "tall child" for whom the gay canyon refuge had been built, but who had never set her slim foot upon the threshold. Sunset found him miles away in the foothills of a low, many-folded range across the plain. He was dog tired, so that for very exhaustion his brain had stopped its tormenting work. He lit a fire and sat by it, huddled in his coat, smoking, dozing, not able really to sleep for cold and hunger. Prosper hated the night and its beautiful desolation, he hated the God that had made this land. He cursed the dawn when it came delicately, spreading a green arc of radiance across the east. And then, as he arose stiffly, stamped out his fire and started slowly on his way back, he was conscious of a passionate homesickness, not for the old life he had lost, but for his cabin, his bright hearth, his shut-in solitude, his Joan. Very dear and real and human she was, and her laughter had been sweet. And she must be anxious about him. She would have sat up by the fire all night. . . . His eagerness for her slighted comfort gave his lagging steps a certain vigor, the long walk back seemed very long indeed. Noon was hot, but he found water, and by sundown he came to the canyon trail. He wanted Joan as badly now as a hurt child wants its mother. He came, haggard and breathless, to the door, called "Joan," came into the warm little room and found it empty. Wen Ho, to be sure, pattered to meet him.

"Mister Gael been gone a long time, velly, long, all night. Wen Ho, he fix bed, fix breakfast—oh, the lady? She gone out yestiddy, not come back. She leave a letter for him, there on the table."

Prosper took it, waved Wen Ho out, and, dropping into the big chair, opened the paper. There was Joan's big handwriting, that he himself had taught her. Before, she could only sign her name.

"Mister Gael, dere frend:

"You have ben too good to me an it has ben too hard for you to keep me when you were all the wile amissin her an it hurts me to think of how it must have ben terrible hard for you all this winter to see me where you had ben ust to seein her an me wearin her pretty things all the wile. Now dere frend this must not be no more. I will not stay to trouble you. You have ben awful free-hearted. When you come back from your wanderin an tryin to get over your bein so unhappy you will find your house quiet an peaceful an you will not be hurt by me no more. I am not able to say all I am feelin about your goodness an I hev not always ben as kind to you in my thoughts an axions but that has ben my own fault not yours. I want you to beleave this, Mister Gael. I am goin back to Pierre's ranch to work on his land an some day I will be hopin to see you come ridin in an I will keep on learnin as well as I can an mebbe you will not be ashamed of me. I feel awful bad to go but I would feel more bad to stay when it must hurt you so. Respectably

There were blistered spots above that pathetic, mistaken signature. The poor girl had meant to sign herself "Respectfully," and somehow that half broke his heart.

He drank the strong coffee Wen Ho brought for him, two great cups of it, and he ate a piece of broiled elk meat. Then he went out again and walked rapidly down the trail. It was not yet dark; the world was in a soft glow of rose and violet, opalescent lights. The birds were singing in a hundred chantries. And there, through the firs, a sight to stop his heart, Joan came walking toward him, graceful, free, a swinging figure, bareheaded, her rags girded beautifully about her. And up and up to him she came soundlessly over the pine needles and through the wet snow-patches, looking at him steadfastly and tenderly, without a smile. She came and stood before him, still without dropping her sad, grave look.

"Mr. Gael," she said, "I hev come back. I got out yonder an'"—her breast heaved and a sort of terror came into her eyes—"an' the world was awful lonely. There ain't a creature out yonder to care fer me, fer me to care fer. It seemed like as if it was all dead. I couldn't abear it."

She put out her hand wistfully asking for pity, but he fell upon his knees and wrapped his hungry arms about her. "Joan," he sobbed, "Joan! Don't leave me. Don't—I couldn't bear it!" He looked up at her, his worn face wet with tears. "Don't leave me, Joan! I want you. Don't you understand?"

Her deep gray eyes filled slowly with light, she put a hand on either side of his face and bent her lips to his. "I never thought you'd be wantin' me," she said.

Urge Equal Taxes

Establishment of a State Tax Commission for the purpose of bringing about equalization of property assessment and a standard millage rate was urged by John A. H. Keith, principal of the Indiana Normal School, at the morning session.

"Only by the establishment of such a commission can the equalization of educational opportunities be established," Keith declared, in advocating the appointment of the commission, "Each school district would then have the same rate of taxation and all property would be assessed at a fair valuation."

Figures on actual valuation of property in the sixty-seven counties of the State, as compared with the assessed valuation show, that the latter bear ratios to the former, ranging from thirty to eighty per cent, according to compilations made by Keith on reports of 1920, the last year for which records are complete.

Eliminate Differences

Such differences under Keith's plan of a tax commission would be eliminated. State aid would be apportioned according to the needs of the community as compared with their amount of taxes paid.

Resolutions were passed by the directors advocating the support of vocational training; better training of vocational school teachers; the establishment of a fund in the State Department of Insurance for the insurance of public school buildings; the entire support of defective children by the State; reimbursement by the State Legislature in cases where large sections of land are withdrawn from taxation by the State or Federal authorities; the adoption of the county unit of taxation; better support of rural schools; modification of the required advertising and limiting of expenditures for repairs or emergency buildings, and expressing appreciation of the services of Dr. J. George Becht, as State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Officers elected were: President, J. K. Townsend, Wilkinsburg; first vice president, George B. Carson, Scranton; second vice president, Dr. J. D. Orr, Leechburg; third vice president, Dr. F. C. Sandt, Easton; secretary-treasurer, D. D. Hammelbaugh, Harrisburg.

BIG RABBITS

The undersigned recently received 1 doe and buck registered and correct pedigreed "Flemish Giants," cost us $22. We have 5 young ones at present, when 5 weeks old they were as big as the wild rabbit. The government report on nutritive value of meats places that of the Flemish Giant at 83 per cent net nutriment. The great doctors recommend this meat for consumptives and all anaemic patients. We will sell these rabbits if any person desires them. The young ones are regular pets. A number of parents have brought their children to see them.

LIMITING STUDENTS

Again the question is being raised of limiting the number of students at Harvard University, and, as President Lowell suggests, it is likely to become a pressing consideration to a large number of other institutions, notes an exchange.

It is the idea of President Lowell that Harvard either must limit its students or fail to render them due service. That condition certainly will develop at some time when the number of students continues to increase, provided a school does not have unlimited resources for enlargement of its facilities in accordance with the students to be accommodated. Perhaps no American college is so equipped.

But how shall this limitation be worked out? If scholarship standards are the only things to be considered, then the colleges will have a student body of none but intellectual hacks, and they will lose some of the finest material in the world. If wealth is to be considered through an application of high students fees then the schools will become mere institutions for loafing young men of the rich, and a poor boy will not be able to get an education except as such institutions as are open to his means.

Our own idea for many years has been that often the small college gives the student the most thorough education if not the most cosmopolitan. It seems, in the light of events, that the great and lasting thing that a young man or woman obtains at the larger schools and universities is the contact and association and the cosmopolitan polish. But, the smaller college, it seems, is equipped to give him or her just as much academic knowledge as the larger institutions and we are not so certain but that the intimacy in existence in the smaller colleges between instructor and student is worth while in a great and broad sense of the word.

The facts seem to be, however, that if there is a limitation of the number of students there will be many worthy ones turned down. It is altogether possible that they will seek other institutions where they will be admitted. And, after all, a school can only be as great as the quality of its student body. In the last analysis, there is not so much difference in these days between one school and another except the size of endowments. In most other respects they are much alike except age.

Peace Settles Over Town

WRIGHTSVILLE—It is apparent that harmony between Burgess W. W. Drenning and the Wrightsville council has been restored. From what could be learned Wednesday night there was an informal conference between some of the members of the council and the burgess after the late meeting of council of Tuesday night, at which time the misunderstanding between the two seemingly opposing forces was removed. All in the conference agreed to cooperate with the burgess, and it is said that two even went so far as to say that they would "dig down in their jeans" for money to pay for the extra police hire, to show the executive that they were back of him in his drive for law enforcement. After the councilmen heard what the constables had to say regarding the extra police hire, they seemed to be satisfied that they had misapprehended the desires of the town's executive, it is said.

State Forester At Hanover

HANOVER—J. R. Williams, state forester at Mont Alto, delivered a lecture Wednesday evening to about 250 people, the majority of whom was boys, in the gymnasium of the Boys' club. Mr. Williams began with asking the name of the forest region through this section of the state, which is "Michaus," and was named in honor of a Frenchman who came here early in the 19th century and who was the first to start forest preservation. He also stated that there were 21 fire wardens located in the Michaus region, and that from 1869 to 1904 this state has exported the greatest amount of timber of any in the United States, but since 1904 to the present date has fallen back to 20th place. Timber is being cut about ten times faster than it is growing, which means an annual loss of about one million dollars freight on timber imported into Pennsylvania.

Red Men Plan Trip

GLEN ROCK—Yosemite tribe No. 100, I. O. R. M., is making arrangements to go to Harrisburg, to attend the state convention of the Red Men, on June 13, and to participate in the parade attending the convention. The following committee was chosen to make the arrangements: H. A. Koller, C. H. Seitz, J. A. Sheffer, D. K. Krebs and C. J. Bahn. The lodge will hold a fair and festival in the building of the Glen Rock Hose and Ladder company, on April 18 and 19, to raise funds to help defray the expenses of the trip.

Washington

Town Joins in Mourning

HAGERSTOWN. — Hagerstown joined the rest of America and a large part of the civilized world Wednesday in paying a tribute to Woodrow Wilson, while the brief funeral services were being held in Washington. Business was suspended for periods varying from one minute to half the day as the nation paid its last tribute of love and respect to the great war President. Bells tolled a requiem for the beloved dead while the city stood in silent reverence. Commemorative services for the former chief executive were held at St. John's Episcopal church from 3 until 3:30 o'clock, the hour of the funeral services in Washington. Prof. Roy A. McMichael was at the organ and played the funeral march. Rev. Walter Bryon Stehl, D. D., rector of the church, conducted the service using appropriate prayers, Psalms and Apostles Creed. The hymn "The Strife is O'er, the Battle Won" was read at the beginning of the service and "Peace, Perfect Peace" at the close.

Names Street Commissioner

HAGERSTOWN. — Wilbur J. Bragonier, Republican, East Avenue, was appointed Street Commissioner to succeed Charles A. Ritchey by Mayor Charles E. Bowman at a special meeting of the Mayor and Council Wednesday night. The appointment was unanimously confirmed, Councilman Chaney being absent. The appointment is for three years. The law requires that the appointment of Street Commissioner be made by the Mayor prior to the first regular meeting in February. Mr. Bragonier will be the minority member of the Board, the hold-over Commissioners being W. L. Middlekauff and M. Finley Seibert, both Democrats. Mr. Bragonier is well known in Hagerstown and has been an active party worker for many years. He is thoroughly familiar with conditions in Hagerstown and should make a splendid official.

Protest Loss of Demonstration

HAGERSTOWN.— Resolutions to be sent to the Board of County Commissioners asking reconsideration of the action they took in abolishing the office of county home demonstrator in this county were unanimously passed at a meeting Wednesday afternoon of the Civic League, Mrs. James Findlay, president. It is understood that other civic organizations will follow suit in protesting abolishment of the county demonstrator.

Tower Built in 1889

HAGERSTOWN. — While going through old records in the Mayor's office Wednesday night, City Clerk H. J. Walker came across the minutes showing that the present tower to the Market House was built in 1889 during the administration of the late Mayor Delcarter. The tax rate at the time was 44 cents on the $100 and the taxable basis slightly over $3,000,000.

Franklin

Beck-Anders Wedding

WAYNESBORO—A pretty home wedding in which two well known people were united in the Holy bonds of matrimony was solemnized Tuesday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Anders, South Church street, when their daughter, Miss Margaret Louise, became the bride of Lester E. Beck, son of the Hon. J. Edward Beck, Clayton avenue. The bride's pastor, the Rev. Clement W. DeChant, performed the ceremony which was witnessed only by members of the immediate families. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Anders, as maid of honor. Blair Minick was best man. The bride wore a chiffon dress of cocoa shade trimmed in fur with hat to match. Lohengrin's Bridal chorus was played as a wedding march by Mrs. Paxton Kisecker, sister of the groom. During the ceremony she played "O Promise Me." A wedding dinner followed the ceremony after which the newlyweds left on an extended honeymoon.

Waynesboro Gets Hitter

WAYNESBORO — Spring-like weather, the thawing of the ground and mud is to be seen most everywhere on the ground, where mud is possible to gather or form. For that reason it may be the start of the season of mud-slinging, a favorite pastime of some people. At least that is one explanation of the charge that Waynesboro had outbid Hagerstown for the services of Bill Satterlee for first base position, as made in the Hagerstown Mail on Saturday. Hagerstown, says the Mail, wants a hard hitting first sacker of the type of Satterlee, and, hearing that he was a free agent, made him an offer. They claim to have it from an authoritative source that Satterlee told Waynesboro officials about it and the Villagers increased the offer. Hagerstown is said to have offered Satterlee $300 per month and the Waynesboro offer is said to have been more.

Youth Is Sentenced

WAYNESBORO—Court convened promptly at 9 a. m. Tuesday. It was hoped that the selection of jurors for the local murder trial, that of John D. Lesher charged with the murder of his wife on Thanksgiving Day, could be started. However, practically all morning was taken up with the cross-examination of witnesses in the case of commonwealth vs. Martin Reid, 18-year-old school bus driver of Amberson Valley, charged with assault and battery on the person of Arlene Hammond, 9-year-old school girl who rode to and from school in his bus. The jury received their instruction and went out at 10:50 a. m. Just before the noon recess the jury in the case returned with a verdict of guilty. Reid was sentenced to Huntingdon Reformatory.

The reason so many people have no ready cash today is because it was ready yesterday.

TRUE FRIENDSHIP

Some like you for the things you own,
Some like you for the power you wield;
Be not deceived—the flattery shown
Has purpose selfishly concealed.
Many will smile when skies are blue,
But friends to share the storms are few.

The growth of friendship true is slow,
'Tis not the conquest of the hour;
Its roots deep in your life must go
Before the tree can bud and flower.
Look to the garden and be wise!
What blossoms quickly, early dies.
Put not your trust in every smile,
Give not your heart to all who call.
Look back across the rugged mile—
Who followed then, lest you should fall?
Who of the throng in victory's train,
Should failure threaten, would remain?

Cherish your friendships! They are few,
And you shall learn this through the years:
Many will share life's joys with you,
But only true friends share your fears.
Sweet is men's flattery, but be wise!
What blossoms quickly, soonest dies.

REBEL CHIEFTAIN FLEES TO YUCATAN

Federal Forces Continue Successful March On Vera Cruz.

Mexico City, Feb. 8.—Adolfo de la Huerta, the revolutionary leader who fled from Vera Cruz aboard an oil tanker, has arrived at Merido, capital of Yucatan, according to information received by the military commandant of Mexico City.

Intercepted wireless dispatches from Candido Aguilar to Estrada and other revolutionary chieftains say Vera Cruz was evacuated because of the numerical superiority of the Federals and that within 48 hours De la Huerta will make known location of the new headquarters of the rebel government.

Federals Nearing Vera Cruz

Federal forces under General Almazan have captured Perote, 50 miles from Vera Cruz, and are expected to enter Vera Cruz Saturday. Colonel Alapberto Tejada, Governor of the state of Vera Cruz, has established his government temporarily at Orizaba until General Almazan occupies Jalapa, which is only a few miles from Perote.

Aviator Ralph O'Neill, a former officer in the American army, successfully attacked a rebel column while it was crossing the Cuitzeo lagoon bridge, 90 miles west of Mexico City. Aviators report that the rebel forces dispersed on this front are concentrating toward Morelia.

Villistas In Coahuila

Five hundred Yaqui Indians have been sent from Chihuahua City to reinforce General Enriquez at Parral, where the rebels are threatening Jiminez and Chihuahua. General Calles, however, has declared that the railway between Torreon and Chihuahua has been repaired and international traffic would be resumed, according to Torreon specials.

The former Villistas who revolted at Canutilo under Manuel Chao are now reported to be under direct command of Nicolas Flores, and finding the Chihuahua atmosphere unfavorable have invaded Coahuila.

It is much more blessed to give than to receive bills.

WHILE FATHER "LISTENED IN"

By ADELAIDE R. KEMP

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

MRS. ANDREWS raised her steel-bowed spectacles over her gray, neatly-parted hair and settled back comfortably in the old stuffed rocker. She watched her husband a little anxiously. On a low stool in front of their radio he was intent on "tuning in." The result at present was a mixture of catcalls and squealing from the graceful loud-speaker that stood just behind the mahogany case. She shook her head and frowned slightly.

"Why don't you stay where you are, pa?" she said. "That was a nice song. You're trying to find the band that plays the new-fangled music—jazz, I think they call it. You know you be," she added accusingly.

David held up a warning finger and shook his white head fretfully.

"Hush, ma. I can't get nothing when you talk. I'm trying to hear some of them good ones we heard last night—fox trots, they call 'em."

Ma rocked a little and looked around the modest sitting room. They might be moving along with the times, but, except for the shining instrument over which her husband was working so eagerly, the rest of the house remained the same. There in their places stood the old haircloth sofa and chairs prim and straight, and on the floor the carpet with its big roses. She had swept and dusted these things for nearly fifty years. On the mantel back of the chunk stove were her mother's candlesticks, and in the center a picture of their only boy, who had died when but a lad. She looked at it tenderly. Not many years now to wait. Above, on the wall, hung an old-fashioned sampler worked in red thread, "There is no place like home."

A sudden chuckle from her husband brought her back to the present. "Ain't that great, Jane! Hear 'em clap?" He was tapping his old slipper and keeping time to the fascinating music.

Mrs. Andrews acquiesced, but there was doubt in her heart. Was it right for David to be so much interested in such music at his time of life? Time was when every Sunday morning they had hitched up old Prince and driven sedately to the white meeting house. Now that winter was here, it was much easier to settle down in the warm sitting room and "listen in" to the beautiful service in some big city church. Through the week David loved to pick up the liveliest music in the air. Oh, shades of their Puritan ancestors! True, they had only reached their present comfort and rest through a life filled with the sternest kind of labor, isolated among the forgotten hills. Now, suddenly, like magic across their horizon, they were able to mingle and listen to the world.

There was a creak that seemed to come from the back shed. Mrs. Andrews turned her head quickly and looked out into the kitchen. It was dark there and only a dim light in the sitting room. They had been listening to a weird sort of play at the beginning of the evening and David had turned out the lights to make it more realistic.

The noise came again.

Mrs. Andrews' heart beat a trifle faster. Then she remembered Tommy, their old cat. He had a way of creeping about like that. David was far away in a western state and having a most enjoyable time. She would not disturb him.

Suddenly, before she could cry out, she felt something cold pressing against her forehead. Before her stood a short man with a cap pulled low over his eyes. In his hand he held the revolver which she felt at her head. His other hand was over her mouth and he made a motion for silence.

Another man, tall and gaunt of frame, was moving across the room toward the radio. David was shaking his head to the music which came rollicking into the room as if in sheer defiance of the tragedy about to be enacted there.

Swift, agonizing thoughts hurled themselves through Mrs. Andrews' brain. What was the use of that great horn, sending out its beautiful music, if it could not in turn receive and broadcast their message for help?

The cold steel of the revolver slipped slightly to the bridge of her nose. She gave one wild shriek.

"Janie! Janie!" David's arms were around her. She looked desperately about. The men were gone, and her husband was holding her close and patting her shoulder.

"Oh, David," she moaned, "they held a cold revolver to my head and it fell to my nose just as they were about to shoot you."

David gently took off her steel-rimmed spectacles and laid them on the table.

"Guess them's all the revolvers you felt, wife. That play was too much, and you fell asleep while I was fox-trotting. They just said 'good-night' to me out in Nebraska, anyway. Wait till I put Tommy out and we'll go to bed. It's 2 o'clock."

What the Brain Can Save the Feet!

It is entirely possible for a total stranger to see everything worth seeing in a great city like New York or London, even without a guide.

True, it would take days and days. It would cost extravagantly, in money, vexations and wasted time. But it can be done.

It is possible, tomorrow morning, say, to start the round of every store in this city, and trudge footsore and weary until you have reviewed everything specially worth buying. But who would?

Who would?—when the advertising columns now spread under your eyes offer you the safe, sure guide to every worth-while buy.

Advertisements virtually bring the contents of all the stores to your immediate inspection. Thus your time is saved; your energy spared for needed effort; and your money given the chance of wisest use.

Lichens Are Descendants of Prehistoric Growth

The world has more than once been startled by reports that a descendant of the monster animals which inhabited the earth before the Ice age has been seen either lifting its head out of the ocean depths or lurking in the darkness of a primeval forest.

Hitherto none of these reports has been confirmed. But when we come to plant life we find in the lichens real prehistoric growths. The lichens we can see and examine today are similar to those which existed tens of thousands of years ago.

The growths which spread themselves over rocks and old walls are a combination of a fungus and countless thousands of algae. The fungus, unable to make its own way in the world, has enmeshed huge numbers of green algal cells, living on the food material which they produce.

That many of these plants are tens of thousands of years old is proved by the fact that by scraping away the crust of lichens the abrasions caused by the passage of ice during the glacial period are as fresh as though they had been made recently. The lichen has protected them from the weather ever since. The Glacial age is said by some scientists to have ended over 80,000 years ago.—London Tit-Bits.

Every Inhabitant of Town Helps Make Muslin

Practically everybody in the little town of Tarare, with its 12,000 inhabitants, in central France, recently referred to in By the Way, is interested in the making of muslin. Quite half the population are actual workers in the mills or in their homes, where muslin is either made on household looms or covered with most beautiful embroidery.

Although the population of Tarare has diminished in recent years the muslin industry is still very remunerative, and theer are some streets in which one's guide will point to the houses of men who (in France) are multi-millionaires—men of great wealth who continue to live side by side with less fortunate citizens, who "thee" and "thou" their rich neighbors as they pass them in the streets. All these people are ready to admit that they owe their prosperity and livelihood to the work and perseverance of M. Antoine Simonet; but they will also tell one that something is due to the water of the river Turdine, which gives the light cotton materials of Tarare certain incomparable qualities as regards texture and color which are recognized by women the world over.—Detroit News.

Penitentes a Strange Sect

The Penitentes, or Penitent Brothers, were once very numerous in New Mexico. They were Mexicans—very ignorant and fanatic ones.

Their strange brotherhood—a remnant and perversion of the penitent orders of the Middle ages—was active only forty days in the year, the forty days before Lent. At that time they flogged their own naked backs with cruel scourges of aloe fiber, carried enormous crosses, lay on beds of cactus, and performed similar self-tortures, making pilgrimages thus. On Good Friday they redoubled their ghastly efforts, and finally crucified, upon a real cross, one of their number who was chosen by lot.

In the Middle ages nearly the whole of Europe had a strange epidemic—a fever of penitential self-whipping. The Flagellants, as they were called, paraded the streets, lashing themselves with scourges, or used the whip at home. Even kings caught the infection, and abused their own royal backs. It took centuries to eradicate this remarkable custom. — Detroit News.

Lilac Buds Protected

Lilac buds, containing twigs, leaves and blossoms in embryo form are tender and delicate and full of water, yet they are able to survive extremely cold weather in which they are frozen solid and even come unscathed through long periods of alternate freezing and thawing. Examination under the microscope reveals the secret of the extraordinary hardiness of these buds. The outer sheath covering the bud is coated with wax, so that the tissues inside are hermetically sealed against outside moisture. Inside are layers of a corky substance which prevents the escape of water from the tissues. Here and there throughout the bud are spaces into which the water expands when it is converted into ice. So long as the outer sheath remains closed and intact freezing and thawing can do no harm whatever.

A Rogues' Gallery

An elderly man of ultra-convivial habits, but withal learned and bookish, was haled before the bar of justice in a country town.

"Ye're charged with bein' drunk and disorderly," snapped the magistrate. "Have ye anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?"

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," began the prisoner in a flight of oratory. "I am not so debased as Poe, so profligate as Byron, so ungrateful as Keats, so intemperate as Burns, so timid as Tennyson, so vulgar as Shakespeare, so—"

"That'll do, that'll do," interrupted the magistrate. "Ninety days. And, officer, take down that list of names he mentioned and round 'em up. I think they're as bad as he is."—American Legion Weekly.

Why do you eat Bran?

TO FIGHT CONSTIPATION—the most dangerous condition your system can become chained to—to get free from bleary biliousness, dull headaches, nausea—etc., etc.!!!

Rid yourself of this dangerous condition—or start "slipping" and become a prey to any one of the most dreaded human ailments which have their beginning with constipation and toxic poisoning!

Fight constipation as you would fight fire! Fight it with bran—Kellogg's Bran—BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN! Don't temporize! Don't waste time and health by going half-way! You need ALL BRAN; you need the bulk, the "roughage" of ALL BRAN, because it sweeps, cleanses and purifies!

REALIZE THIS—foods with a part bran content can only relieve constipation in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! If they are 25 or 50 per cent bran—you may get 25 or 50 per cent relief!

REMEMBER THIS—Kellogg's Bran is ALL BRAN and is guaranteed to give you positive and permanent relief if you will eat two tablespoonfuls daily, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

Don't delay; don't fuss with half-way measures! You have too much at stake! All grocers sell—

Personal Relationship

The friendly cooperation of our customers is a thing that is close to our heart in the conduct of our business. We want, not only, to deal with our patrons on terms that avoid business friction, but we desire the utmost personal friendliness in our daily exchanges.

Legally, we are classified as a "Public Service Corporation." That is a correct designation, because our service is extended to the public. But our dealings are with individuals. We are in constant contact with the homes of every consumer.

Our relations are, therefore, of a personal character.

Amongst other things, we want to impress all householders of the advantages to be derived by them, of the close personal touch. We want them to treat the service which we render rather as a personal, household service.

Upon such terms friction will be removed, friendly relations will be assured, and better service will become inevitable.

A Story of Success

How Studebaker Cars became leaders

145,000 people last year paid $200,000,000 for them

THE most talked-about cars among fine cars are the Studebaker Sixes — at $975 and up.

Sales have almost trebled in the past three years. The demand for these cars, growing by leaps and bounds, has been Motordom's chief sensation.

Over $200,000,000 was last year spent for Studebaker models.

Now we wish to explain, to all who are interested, the reasons for that success.

Studebaker has always led

For 72 years the name Studebaker has stood for quality and class.

Studebaker equipages, in the carriage days, held premier place. The White House owned them in the days of Grant and Harrison.

Now we make motor cars only. But the Studebaker name, in this modern field, simply had to maintain its prestige.

We had the money, we had the incentive — we who now control. And our one ambition has been to maintain the Studebaker place.

$90,000,000 assets behind us

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000. We have $50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment.

Not old plants re-adapted. We have spent $32,000,000 in new plants in five years. We have equipped them with 12,500 up-to-date machines.

Over $8,000,000 was spent on drop forge plants alone. Another $10,000,000 on body plants, to maintain our prestige in coach building.

We believe that no other plant in the country is so well equipped to build quality cars as Studebaker.

Engineering—$500,000 yearly

We created an engineering department which costs $500,000 yearly.

There are 125 skilled men there who devote their time to studying betterments in cars. They make 500,000 tests yearly.

There is a department of Methods and Standards. They decide and fix every standard in these cars.

Our factories employ 1,200 inspectors, to make 30,000 inspections on all Studebakers cars. Few flaws, few mistakes can escape them. That, we believe, is the finest organization ever devoted to motor car building.

The price of quality

On some steel alloys for vital parts we pay 15% extra to get them exact.

We spend $600,000 yearly to machine all surfaces of crank shafts, just as in Liberty Airplane Motors. That is the reason for that perfect balance, that absence of vibration.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,600 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,000 of its price.

Learn why 145,162 bought Studebakers in 1923

Studebakers hold the top place in the fine car field today.

In 1919, the public paid over $80,000,000 for 39,356 Studebaker cars.

In 1920, the public paid over $100,000,000 for 51,474 Studebaker cars, an increase of 31% over 1919.

In 1921, the public paid over $120,000,000 for 66,643 Studebaker cars, an increase of 29% over 1920.

In 1922, the public paid over $155,000,000 for 110,269 Studebaker cars, an increase of 66% over 1921.

In 1923, the public paid over $201,000,000 for 145,162 Studebaker cars, an increase of 32% over 1922.

In 1924, business has opened with Studebaker as never before.

Learn why all these buyers preferred Studebakers.

Open cars have real leather upholstery. They cost $25 more per car than imitation leather.

Our closed cars have Chase Mohair upholstery. This is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. And a Sedan requires from 15 to 18 yards.

Velour for this upholstery would save us up to $100 per car.

Note the finish of every detail. Mark the infinite care. They add 25% to labor cost on luxurious closed bodies.

Note the completeness of our larger closed cars. The nickel-plated bumpers, the extra disc wheels and cord tires, the steel trunk, the courtesy light, etc. Think what they would cost you, bought as extras.

Thus we have made the Studebaker the leader of quality cars. We have built a demand exceeding 145,000 cars per year.

Learn the results of these efforts, in fairness to yourself. Don't buy a car at $1,000 or over without knowing what we offer.

Compare the parts and details. Mark the advantages we offer — scores on scores. Our experience is that 95% of those who do that buy a Studebaker car.

Find Statue 5,000 Years Old

A royal statue 5,000 years old is one of the many rare relics unearthed by excavations recently made on the site of Ur in Mesopotamia, the home town of Abraham's ancestors. The statue was dug up in the ruins of a temple dedicated to the moon god, whose worship was observed there for probably 4,000 years. It is a figure of Entemena, king of Lagash, who lived about 2900 B. C. What he looked like is impossible to discover as the head of the statue is missing. Records show the temple to have been rebuilt in 2300 B. C., after many centuries of use. It was remodeled by Nebuchadnezzar and again by Cyrus the Great in the Fifth century B. C. This was probably the last alteration as less than a century later the Persian fire-worshipers destroyed all the temples and images of the ancient idolatrous religion.

Mother's Mistake

"You look worried, old man," said Charles. "What's the matter?"

"I called on Miss Graham last night," returned Claude, "and no sooner had I entered the house than her mother appeared and demanded to know my intentions."

"That situation must have been rather embarrassing."

"Yes, but that wasn't the worst. Just as the old lady finished speaking, Miss Graham shouted down the stairs:

"'Mother, that isn't the one!'"

Most Effective

"I suppose, Henry," said the old gentleman to his new son-in-law, "that you are aware the check for fifty thousand dollars I put among your wedding presents was merely for effect."

"Oh, yes, sir," responded the cheerful Henry, "and the effect was excellent. The bank cashed it this morning without a word."—Vanity Fair.

Too Late

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Hotel Plans Two Story Addition

necting link between the Hotel Gettysburg and the proposed structure in the rear would be sixteen feet above the right of way, which would be sufficient to allow the passage of any load underneath without interference. The passage way, according to Attorney Butt and Architect Lee, would be enclosed on all sides and properly roofed and spouted so that rain water or litter would not fall into the alley and menace traffic.

Other business coming before council seemed trivial compared with that of the request of the Hotel Gettysburg Company, and much time was wasted in useless discussions, it was felt.

One of the more important items of current business was the granting of authority to the proper committee for the purchase of a one-ton dump truck for the borough's use, to replace the horse and cart now in use.

Charles Hemler, Baltimore street, appeared before council, complaining that the sewer from Baltimore street to the Tiber was not large enough to take care of the water which falls in times of heavy rains, causing the pavement at the foot of Baltimore hill to be inundated. The matter was referred to the sewer committee for investigation.

The bond of William G. Weaver, borough treasurer, for $14,000 was accepted and approved in the manner and form presented.

Endorsement was given the proposition of James B. Aumen, fire chief, who expects to procure free or for a nominal cost a pneumatic-tired truck from the United States government, for the use of the Gettysburg Fire Company.

Solicitor Swope asked that principal borough ordinances, except those relating to street improvements and the fixing of tax rates, be compiled and printed in pamphlet form so as to facilitate the solicitor's work in looking up borough law in questions which, he said, are constantly confronting him. The ordinance committee members promised to meet Solicitor Swope in the near future to make such a compilation.

At the request of Councilman Snyder, the council decided to pay the fire company $50 when the New Oxford Milling Company pays the cost of having the local company assist at the recent flour mill fire in that borough. The money, it was pointed out, was to have been forthcoming from the check of $100 sent the borough by Harry E. Riddlemoser for the company's services at a barn fire near McKnightstown, and which, it was said, he intended the fire company to have.

With President Frank R. Peckman presiding, the following members were in attendance: Peter C. Stock, Jesse E. Snyder, W. I. Oyler, Harry Koch, N. B. Schnurman, George W. Rex and Professor Allen Dickson.

SAYS—NOW STIFF JOINTS MUST GO!

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases.

Yes; it's true—the world progresses. All you have to do nowadays to limber up that stiff, rusty knee joint is to squeeze a half inch of miracle working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on its errand of mercy.

Then read the evening newspapers and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its "creak" while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint-Ease they call this wonderful working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good; clean, stainless prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

People's Drug Store and Stallsmith's Newsstand Drug Store have a big supply of it and druggists everywhere report a big demand.—adv.

Management Gives Details of Changes

liard room will be allowed to remain as it is. It was formerly the grill and both the lobby and barroom opened into it.

When the remodelling is completed, there will be two entrances to the hotel lobby. The present entrance on the square will be maintained and in addition an entrance will be thrown open into Carlisle street, leading from what is now the ladies' room. Over this entrance will be a marquis covering, greatly improving the appearance of that side of the hotel.

The office of the manager, registering desk, cigar and cigarette counters will be moved from their present location to a position in the northwest corner of the new lobby.

To facilitate the handling of guests a passenger elevator will be installed, and after travellers register they will be whisked to the first or second floor on the lift.

The large and small dining rooms now operated by the hotel will be thrown into one, although arrangements will be made to partition off a portion of the large room for small groups of diners. French doors will be installed at the entrance from the lobby into the dining room. The dining room, when enlarged, will be further improved by new decorations, a new floor, new lights and new furniture.

On the two sleeping floors of the hotel the sixty rooms will be repapered, repainted and refurnished.

Under present plans, the improvements to the lobby and most of the work on the upstairs will be completed before April 1 and the opening of the summer tourist season.

Ignorance to Blame.

Many a bad debt owes its birth more to ignorance and indifference than to wilful intent to defraud. To oppose or neglect vaccination and cleanly habits is to invite ill health and financial distress.

Don't Be Overfond.

Do not be overfond of anything or consider that for your interest which inclines you to any practice which will not bear the light or permit you to look the world in the face.

Old Axiom Wrong.

There must be something wrong with that old axiom about ignorance being bliss—otherwise more people would be happy.

Home Made Cough Mixture Best

Spreads Over Membrane, Soothes, Heals and Stops Cough Quick.

Make your own cough syrup in two minutes at home if you want the best. It costs but a trifle.

Simple coughs, or stubborn coughs, it doesn't matter which, this home made mixture will stop them quicker than any expensive cough syrup you can buy ready made.

Get from People's Drug Store or any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar, as directed, and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it, and children like it.

Like a soothing, healing poultice one costly substance in this home made cough mixture spreads itself completely over the membrane of the throat. This causes the most stubborn hang-on cough to cease almost instantly. No ordinary slow-acting cough syrup contains this expensive ingredient.—adv.
